[SUMMARY OF INVESTIGATION] Preliminary analysis suggests a transactional relationship between a high-level financial stakeholder and members of Stationary Task Force Kappa-16. Exhibit A indicates an explicit willingness by the investor to divert currency (Robux) toward specific K-16 interests or assets without standard justification ("for nothing"). Exhibit B suggests a high level of personal rapport and institutional protection, with the operative referring to the investor as a "goat", indicating favoritism that compromises the task force's impartiality.
